Overview

Whether you're seeking an isolated tiny home or a versatile hunting camp, this 28-acre property in the serene Town of Springfield, Maine, is ready for you. The main cabin, fully insulated and heated by a wood stove, is equipped with power, well water, a propane stove, and on-demand hot water. A stone's throw from the cabin, an unfinished bunkhouse offers endless possibilities. The property also features open spaces for gardens and planted fruit trees. The Town and surrounding lands provide a variety of outdoor activities, from hiking and fishing to canoeing and hunting.
